Dear customer,

Vaisala is addressing the impacts of the Covid-19 Coronavirus outbreak. Our global delivery capability is currently functional. We are currently not experiencing any immediate threat to component availability, as we have a sufficient stock of most components available either at Vaisala or via suppliers globally.

At Vaisala, most of our production takes place in Europe, and the role of Chinese suppliers is limited. Therefore, the flight and road transportation limitations to and from China as well as local workforce partly being in quarantine, does not at the moment have any major impacts.

To ensure the best possible long-term delivery capability and component availability, we are currently investigating and preparing for possible impacts by collaborating with our suppliers and partners world-wide. Our team is actively working to find alternative delivery routes and methods as well as to mitigate any possible upcoming risks related to component availability.

We are following the situation closely. Our team will inform you in case of any changes in the situation that may impact your deliveries. For more information, please reach out to your own Vaisala contact person.

Best regards

Vesa Pylvänäinen
